

SIX VICTORIOUS MONTHS THE VICTORY SIX

When the Victory Six was announced six months ago it was the talk of the town. It was a great car then; it is an even greater car now. It has stood the test. Each month has seen a substantial increase in Victory Six sales.

Not because of what we have been saying for six months. Or because of what we say now. But because of what the Victory Six is.

HOUSE AND GARDEN FOR SUMMER COMFORT

Lolling outdoors, if the weather is what it should be, is a favorite summer pastime and one that no one begrudges the next person. For this purpose the canvas arm chair framed in iron (shown above) is perfect for garden, porch or terrace. Gaily painted either to harmonize with the canvas, this chair is especially appealing because its one-piece back permits an easy posture. The lacquered table of stick willow with its straight lines reflects the modern trend in furniture. The squareness of this table suggests a card table of merit. Armchairs built along the same lines would complete this group, comfortably and decoratively.

HEAT PROSTRATION IN DOGS

By Robert S. Lemmon
It is a fact not generally realized that many dogs are markedly susceptible to weather conditions. Extremes of both cold and heat have a decided effect on them—especially in the latter.

In the event of a spell of really not weather coming along, there is a good chance that the temperature will make your dog decidedly uncomfortable. Further than this, it may produce more or less complete heat prostration—a very real and not at all imaginary condition. Many a dog literally wilts when the thermometer climbs into the nineties, particularly if the humidity also is high. If he is not treated right at such a time, the results may be serious.

When a situation like this is faced, a dog should be kept in as cool a place as possible and not forced to move about any more than he wants to. See that he has cool, fresh drinking water and simple food, but do not force him to eat unless he feels like it. In extreme cases, an electric fan can be brought into beneficial use. Every sort of exercise which might increase his heart action and the natural heat of his body is to be avoided, of course.

MODERN PLANTS AND THEIR POTS

The ubiquitous pot of ivy, while not displaced, has given first place this last season to an invader from the dry lands—the cactus. And to house this popular newcomer nothing could be more appropriate than the most modern of wall brackets and pots.

Above we have sketched something that answers such a need. This modern design utilizes a sheet iron in an effective manner. The wall bracket is sturdy and so constructed as to easily bear the weight of the plant without bending. This modernist wall pocket may be painted or lacquered any desirable shade (red, green, blue and yellow are good outdoor and porch colors) or left in its bright unfinished state. Copper or brass may be dealt with in this manner, too.

THE ART OF CUTTING ROSES

The art of growing good Roses, does not stop with a profusion of bloom. If we would have a continued supply of flowers throughout the blossoming season we must be careful to cut our flowers in a proper manner. The above diagram shows such a method in a graphic manner.

The Rose that keeps longest and looks the best indoors is the one that has been cut in the bud. That is just as the bloom is beginning to unfold. This bud should be cut so that five-leaf foliage is left on the stem. (If you examine a Rose plant carefully you will see that there are leaves with both three and five leaflets). If the Rose stem is cut at C there is only a three-leaf remaining upon the stem; such cuts rarely give good flower stems. Cut at any of the places marked B, and there are five-leaflets with the result that flower buds will start to grow in short order. If you cut at A, flower stems will develop very slowly, if at all. So in cutting Roses remember to leave a leaf with five leaflets.

One might also add that in cutting Roses one should use a sharp knife rather than a pair of shears, unless you have a set, made especially for the purpose, such as those that cut the flower and hold it in an upright position. Cut with a slanting stroke. Such cuts are healed easiest and do not result in an ungainly or sickly plant.

Roses are best when cut in the early morning with the dew still on them. Plunge the stems immediately into a can of water if you would have them keep their freshness after they are indoors.

McClellan For Supervisor

Jonathan S. Dodge, chairman of the campaign committee for Supervisor R. H. McClellan, seeking re-election, has issued the following statement urging Mr. McClellan's election:

"Supervisor R. F. McClellan is a candidate to succeed himself in the fourth district. A veteran in Los Angeles County governmental affairs, Mr. McClellan has genuinely come to be regarded as the administrative head of the government of this state's biggest institution.

Mr. McClellan's record as the administrative head of the government of this great county is an outstanding example of capable service, efficiently, economically and honestly rendered. The people of this district will do well to return to this important office a man of such business and executive intellect; proven ability and integrity.

The continuity of policy in the management and performance of great enterprises is recognized as an economic need of first rank. If Mr. McClellan was in the employ of a private business of the same magnitude no one interested in that business would countenance for a moment any consideration or proposal to replace him by some one who was untried in the great responsibilities involved.

A man who has conclusively demonstrated his ability in every respect; attribute and requisite of an office deserves to be continued in that office. However, it is not so much a matter of what Mr. McClellan deserves as what the county needs.

The welfare of the county, the district and the taxpayers will be in good hands if Mr. McClellan's services are retained."

Charming English Type of Moderate Cost

THE KISHOWANA—DESIGN AT41

Modified adaptations frequently prove more satisfactory in their interior completeness than do the homes which conform strictly to the architectural demands of the true English type. And almost always they are decidedly cheaper to construct. English type homes are attractive. Their sharp lines, their abruptly upthrust chimneys from unexpected corners, their broad sweeps of steep roof and their small paneled windows give them an undisputed air of distinction. But in interior results the achievement isn't always so good.

In this house something of the English atmosphere has been attained in the broad sweep of the roof, the long roof lines, and the treatment of the windows. And inside it is almost free of the objectionable features frequently encountered in the true English home. Here the upper floor rooms have walls with nearer full ceiling height than usual in this type of architecture and excellent lighting throughout.

It is a house that will fit into any surrounding, although where possible it should be selected for a wooded setting. Trees are helpful but, not imperative and even in the open it can be very appealingly dressed by appropriate landscaping and a judicious selection of shrubbery.

The lower floor is delightfully arranged with a living room of good size lighted by windows on three sides and furnished with a large open grate, always a desirable feature. Likewise the dining room is cheerful and a cozy breakfast nook and pantry is between it and the kitchen. Beyond the latter is a well equipped laundry. The arrangement throughout this floor is ideal.

On the upper floor are three exceptional sleeping rooms and the bath. These are also well lighted and each has ample closet room. While not a large house the rooms are all of good size, larger than one would expect built of common brick it insures long service with small upkeep expense and always the assurance of the highest resale value.

The Common Brick Manufacturers' Association, Cleveland, Ohio, can furnish complete drawing for this design. Leaflet on brick construction sent upon request.
